Description

The essays contained in this book which were written in the recent past cover issues relating to Islamic Law. Concisely written, they reflect the dynamism and flexibility of Islamic Law as a comprehensive and all-encompassing system covering all the situations of life. There is no doubt whatsoever that Islamic Law, the Shariah, in its infinite breadth and depth can easily be applied to new situations and changing circumstances. An impartial study of its underlying principles would reveal that they are dynamic and rooted in equity and, as a Divine System, are free from the imperfections of secular man-made systems of Law. The essays contained in this book will inspire the reader to search for more and create a deeper sense of awareness to apply the Shariah, which governs all the activities of Muslims.
